NAZCA

Collection

Created with a precision that defies any technique that could exist almost 2000 years ago, these lines mark the terrain of one of the most arid areas of the planet, recreating all kinds of animals and geometric shapes, which surprises with its enormous proportions, some reaching more than 250 meters.

The lack of rain, which favored its conservation, and the singularity of the land, a semicircle of hills that make up a gigantic natural amphitheatre of more than 500 km², from where you can see many of these marks. All this must have inspired this early civilization, to develop gigantic drawings that used their own earth as a canvas.

A work that defies all the limits of its time, and for which they had to use techniques and tools invented by themselves, and whose purpose could be to propitiate a ritual landscape, for the invocation of water, the most vital asset in this desert area of Peru. Undoubtedly, the greatest symbol of a culture that was also characterized by developing great progress in economy, architecture and especially agriculture.

Although studies have managed to know and reconstruct the process of creating these lines, many other questions have not yet been resolved regarding them. How were you able to orient many of these drawings to other great monuments of your civilization? What other reasons propitiated these works of such magnitude? This and other issues continue to involve another great ENIGMA of history.

Evoking the rocky appearance of the precious metal deposits characteristic of this area, where one of the most important mines in South America is located, these metallic patterns arise with colors and textures of unique beauty and distinctiveness. These patterns are combined with new finishes that are sure to be the future of the stone industry.

COLIBRI

Nazca Collection

Completely relevant pattern, whose composition alludes some reminiscence to the strength and naturalness of an oxidized material.

Adored by architects and interior designers, it becomes a true whim in decoration. Its irregularity and depth are an esthetic potential, which adapts perfectly to the new contemporary canons.

A magical game of brown and ocher tones, merge to offer a product capable of giving great personality to any environment.

SPYDER

Nazca Collection

Cement structure, with a base in which different greys are fused, flooded by tenuous dark traces, which take greater prominence in their lighter areas.

A surface that pretends with great success to have seen the passing of time, but which in turn is postulated as an ideal material to bring modernity to the spaces where it is applied.

All a jewel that escapes the canons established so far.

MOAI

Collection

Lost in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, thousands of kilometers away from any other place, huge monolithic statues with almost human form flood every corner of Easter Island. The construction, transport and placement of these sculptures of more than 80 tons, still raises some doubts.

Probably with ceremonial motives dedicated to their ancestors, these imposing sculptures of volcanic rock were created and distributed throughout the island, many of them more than 1000 years ago, leaving clear samples of advanced architectural and engineering knowledge.

There, the Rapanui, were able to grow and develop an entire civilization away from any other, with limited resources, and in a very small area, a clear example of the tenacity of the human race and the struggle for survival. In addition, before a company of such great magnitude, as was to raise these colossal statues, they discovered and advanced in great techniques, which remain a challenge for modern technology. How did they do it? Even today they are a true ENIGMA.

The texture and uniqueness of the stones used for the construction of these totems mark the MOAI collection, with finished cements that represent a revolution in the sector. Unique and exclusive models, in a collection sure to mark the beginning of a trend.

SCULPTURE

Moai Collection

Design based on a short spectrum of shades of grey, delicately mixed and flooded by a constellation of subtle patterns.

A composition with a strong hypnotising power, thanks to a subtle and dazzling design, which will undoubtedly set trends for those environments that seek the fine style that evokes the most discrete beauty.

NUI

PUKAO

Moai Collection

Soul of cement, where a range of warm greys are fused with a darker granulate, sprinkled with almost imperceptible crystals.

A strong industrial character, appropriate for contemporary spaces, which can also bet on the mix of styles.

An unmistakable style of great visual power that mixes refinement and originality at the same time.
